

Alive in the Wilderness

Just under the surface of a river
There is a silvery elusiveness
That loosens us for looking down and in.

The sounds of snowy waters, freshly streaming
Towards their vast and magical destinations,
Silence every note of our quotidian

With secrets of the endless Day. The river
Whispers its wordless knowledge in our hearts
And promises to purl in us forever.